Live in the Washington metropolitan area?

You may wish to share in the activities of the local American Revolution Round Table (ARRT). The ARRT is a refreshing opportunity to discover further the dynamic dimensions of one of the world's great events. It was a time of epic struggles that is far more complex and influential than is popularly perceived.

This period was rich with distinctive personalities and a unique concentration of political and military leadership. Compared to later eras, the lesser scale of destruction and simpler armaments tend to obscure the true brilliance and significance of military operations in the American War for Independence. The ARRT offers a special opportunity to discover the many interesting aspects (social and economic, as well as political and military) of the American War for Independence.

Since 1974, monthly ARRT speaking programs have been presented by well known and distinguished historians, authors, and educators. Many speakers are scholars and members of the ARRT. Early ARRT program topics generally covered the chronological development of events as they were commemorated during the bicentennial of the Revolution. Subsequent programs continue to expand upon the impressive array of past talks and field trips. Some programs re-address themes of past presentations, with different speakers and perspectives. Other programs pertain to post-revolution creation of the American political institutions and traditional foundations.

The ARRT welcomes non-members to attend one of the monthly meetings in order to evaluate their interest in joining the round table. ARRT meetings, each with dinner followed by a program talk, are held at Fort Meyer Officers' Club in Arlington, VA, on the first Wednesday of the month. Reservations are made using the form which accompanies the ARRT monthly newsletter, a copy of which can be mailed to interested individuals.
